

love life, making money,
getting in shape, faem life, Christianity, video stores, tiny fruits, the patriarch,

The pig roast by the patriarch in the backyard next door.

Jess says that he can't seem to understand what it means to love somebody.

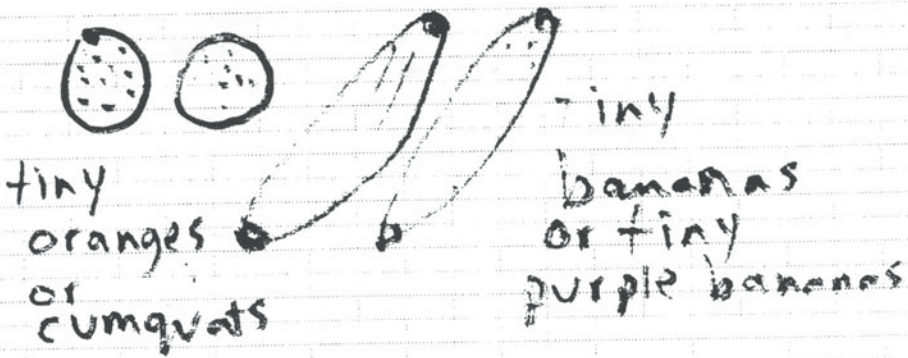

He is not sure if divorce has made him this way.

He thinks the ideal life would be living on a farm in Ohio continuing his collection of tiny fruits. Jess likes going on long walks with a note book to record sightings of various unrecognized monuments and abstract art. These include both the three live pigs down the street and the forty or fifty roasting pigs in the patriarch's backyard (the patriarch is the leader of a band of Hawaiian musicians and concrete workers)

This is what the patriarch looks like, when he stands on his porch at nite. He likes Sunny Delight.
He's just wearing his boxers, like usual.

tiny grapes
that are dehydrated (and other tiny dehydrated things)

The tiny
Donut peach

Jess Philliard lives in Portland, OR.

he is a writer, musician and maker of stuff, and sometimes a seller of stuff, and personal body guard and personal consultant for hire. Jess can be contacted about his services and interests at: JessPhilliard@ hotmail.com